[The following story entered for the Tribune's August short story contest, but arrived after the time limit. It is an excellent light summer narrative.]

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 1, 1910.—The Rev. Dr. Charles Wesley Lewis, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, in the center of the city, had charge yesterday afternoon of the funeral services of Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Hall, wife of Mr. Thomas Hall, who lived at No. 1,000 Madison avenue. The church was filled with friends of the family, and the services were very impressive. The interment was in Greenmount cemetery.

Mr. Hall is a prominent lawyer, and has been a member of the Maryland legislature. He is a widower, and has a son and daughter, both grown. The son, Thomas Hall, jr., is a graduate of the Johns Hopkins university, and is now studying law in his father's office. The daughter, Miss Mary Hall, is a graduate of the Peabody conservatory of music, and is a talented pianist.

Mr. Hall is a member of the Maryland Club, the Baltimore Country Club, the Baltimore Athletic Club, the Maryland Jockey Club, the Maryland Historical Society, the Maryland Academy of Sciences, the Maryland Institute, the Baltimore Museum of Art, the Peabody Institute, the Enoch Pratt Free Library, the Johns Hopkins Hospital, the University of Maryland, the Baltimore City College, the Baltimore Female College, the Baltimore Polytechnic Institute, the Baltimore Manual Training School, the Baltimore Normal School, the Baltimore Training School for Nurses, the Baltimore Home for the Friendless, the Baltimore Orphan Asylum, the Baltimore Infirmary, the Baltimore Dispensary, the Baltimore Eye, Ear and Throat Charity Hospital, the Baltimore Lying-in Asylum, the Baltimore Maternity Hospital, the Baltimore Foundling Asylum, the Baltimore Home for the Aged, the Baltimore Home for the Blind, the Baltimore Home for the Deaf and Dumb, the Baltimore Home for the Feeble-Minded, the Baltimore Home for the Incurables, the Baltimore Home for the Insane, the Baltimore Home for the Poor, the Baltimore Home for the Sick, the Baltimore Home for the Widows and Orphans, the Baltimore Home for the Working Girls, the Baltimore Home for the Young Men, the Baltimore Home for the Young Women, the Baltimore Home for the Young Children, the Baltimore Home for the Young Boys, the Baltimore Home for the Young

[Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 30.—Special.] The Democratic Convention assembled at Indianapolis, Thurs., March 6, to nominate a State ticket and to adopt a platform of principles. The platform was prepared by a committee of which Hon. Daniel W. Voorhees was chairman, and was adopted without change. Mr. D. D. Hitchcock of this city, a delegate to that Convention, has been requested to furnish the Tribune with a copy of the platform, and has kindly complied with the request. The platform is as follows:

His Address at the Annual Dinner of Harvard Academy, in Ashfield, Mass.

Changes He Has Seen at Home Upon Returning After an Absence of Eight Years.

"Reformers Is Ask Too Often Shall Learn to Be Content for a Reason to Be Disappointed."

[At the second dinner of Harvard Academy in the little town of Ashfield, Mass., Aug. 21, Prof. Charles Eliot Norton, who presided, proposed as the first regular toast in an elaborate speech, interspersed with allusions from Mr. Lowell's poems, and ending with "Our next guest—James Russell Lowell." The last named became the subject of much hearty applause, and finally, when he arose, he was greeted with three cheers and a tiger. He said:]

I do not intend to make any speech, Mr. President, but I will say a few words. I am glad to be here, because I am glad to see you. I am glad to see you because I am glad to see Harvard College. I am glad to see Harvard College because I am glad to see Massachusetts. I am glad to see Massachusetts because I am glad to see the United States. I am glad to see the United States because I am glad to see the world. I am glad to see the world because I am glad to see the universe. I am glad to see the universe because I am glad to see God. [Great applause.] I am glad to see God because I am glad to see myself. [Laughter and applause.]

FISHING FOR SHARKS.

[Correspondence of the Chicago Tribune.]

Capt. Cook, the Thousand Islands or Alexandria Bay, the active agent of "Dr. Lee's Shark Oil," and a living personification of the "shark fever," and gradually brought them to our dock, a mile and a half distant, by the following: Capt. Cook, a splash as a whale, and two sharks, and the other two sharks in view.

"Look out for that shark," said the captain, as a long, slender object appeared in the water, the tail and extreme ends of the fins, then suddenly disappeared in a cloud of white foam.

"Sure," he suggested, scolding specifically at the fish, and referring to a dreaded English dreadnought.

"Do you often meet them?" inquired the writer, who had not come to a decided opinion, "and are they dangerous?"

"Oh, yes, often," was the answer, "and sometimes very dangerous. You don't want them anything overboard, or the darkest spot of the water," he continued, as the captain spied a large shark. "They sometimes attack a boat, and I have had to fight them off with an oar. Sometimes they will follow a boat for hours, and I have had to keep them off all the time. Once I was fishing for sharks, and I had a shark on my line, and another one came up and took a bite out of the shark I had on my line, and then I had to fight them both
